

A Forwardian Artist

Christa Alford

Christa lives in the beautiful mountains of Pennsylvania and She is a self taught artist. Her art is a work in progress and she continues to experiment with new techniques and materials. Her designs are made from mostly recycled materials and hand painted glass. She is inspired by objects that would otherwise be trash. She allows the materials that she finds to lead her to the finished product, often with surprising results.

Her work titled, “Wings for Bill” has just been published in an international art book, “Sculpture and Design with Recycled Glass” by Cindy Ann Coldiron with only fourteen artists from around the world were chosen to be included in her book.

calford18202@yahoo.com

We are honored to present her work titled, “Wings for Bill” in our magazine.

You’ll be able to read her work in Sections I of our magazine through our link at: www.theforwardianartssociety.com/Forwardian-3-Contents.html.